As such, all employees have a responsibility to communicate clearly to colleagues about behaviours that may be offensive and ask that it be discontinued

Procedure on Receipt of Complaints

- i. Conciliation/Informal Process: Based on the circumstances of each case, Internal Committee/the involved parties may choose to deal with a complaint through either an informal or formal process.
The informal process provides individuals an opportunity to resolve issues immediately and in an open, honest, non-threatening manner. It could take the form of:
 - a. Directly speaking with the alleged offender;
 - b. Involving the HR facilitator to arrive at a mediated resolution

Informal resolutions are effective as sometimes an individual may not know that he/she is being offensive and, if asked, may stop or alter his/her behaviour. Complainants who feel that they are being subject to harassment are therefore encouraged to inform the alleged offender that his/her conduct is unwelcome and request for it to cease.

If this not a practical choice for any reason, the complainant can, through the HR focal point, seek a mediated redressal. The intent is to have a mutually agreeable person help to clear the issue and reestablish a harmonious and productive work environment.

Note: Those who are unsure of what is the appropriate resolution process to use may speak with the HR focal point to make a more informed decision. Additionally, please remember that the decision to opt for an informal process will not reduce either party's right to later shift to a formal process if either of them feels that they did not get a fair decision.

It is also encouraged that both parties maintain records of all incidents, (for example, hard copies of emails, details of dates, places, witnesses and their feelings at the time of the alleged harassment). These are useful should a formal process come up.

- ii. Formal Process: Where the informal resolution has not been satisfactory for both/either parties or in situations where complaint cannot be resolved informally or the employee chooses not to resolve informally, the formal process of investigation is followed. To enable a formal investigation, a written complaint with the following details must be submitted:

ANNEXURE 3

Guidelines for the Redressal / Investigation Committee

Harassment Investigation Guide for members of the Internal Committee

1. Getting the employee to describe the claim:
2. Listen to the charge. Don't make comments like, "You're overreacting."
3. Acknowledge that bringing a harassment complaint is a difficult thing to do.
4. Maintain a professional attitude.
5. Gather the facts; don't be judgmental.
6. Ask who, what, when, where, why, and how. Find out if the employee is afraid of retaliation. How does the employee want the problem resolved?
7. Ask the employee to give the complaint in writing. Offer assistance if required to write down the complaint.
8. Conducting an investigation of the claim—general rules to follow:
9. Investigate immediately. Delaying or extending an investigation can make witness testimony increasingly unreliable.
10. Remember that the manner in which the investigation is handled can itself furnish grounds for a hostile environment claim, so carefully document every step.
11. Treat all claims seriously—even those that seem frivolous—until you have reason to do otherwise.
12. Keep the investigation confidential. Emphasize to those involved that your discussions are not to be shared with unconcerned parties. Warn of possible disciplinary action, if necessary.
13. Limit the number of persons who have access to the information. Communicate strictly on a "need to know" basis.

Shyamala Deshpande

14. Ask questions so that information is not unnecessarily disclosed. For example, instead of asking, “Did you see_____touch_____?” ask “Have you seen anyone touch Joan at work in a way that made her uncomfortable?” Remember—the purpose of the investigation is to gather facts, not disseminate allegations.
15. If there is more than one allegation, treat each separately.
16. Never broadcast the facts of a given situation or the results as an example to others or as a training tool.
17. Interviewing the complainant (Can be done when employee first reports charge):
18. Get specific details.
19. Find out whether there was a pattern of previous episodes or similar behaviour toward another employee.
20. Get the specific context in which the conduct occurred. Where? What time?
21. Determine the effect of the conduct on the complainant. Was it economic, non-economic and/or psychological?
22. Determine the time relationship between the occurrence of the conduct, its effect on the complainant, and the time when the complainant made the report.
23. Prepare a detailed chronology.
24. Analyze whether there might have been certain events that triggered the complaint, i.e., promotion, pay or transfer denial.
25. Determine whether there were any possible motives on the part of the complainant.
26. Find out what the complainant wants.
27. Explain to the complainant that the charges are serious, that you will conduct a thorough investigation before reaching any conclusion, and that he or she will not be retaliated against for making the complaint.
28. Don't make any statements about the accused employee's character, job performance, or family life.
29. Interviewing the offending person:/accused :
30. Obtain a statement from the accused.
31. Identify the relationship of the accused to the complainant.
32. Was there any prior consensual relationship between the parties? How long have they known each other? Is there a history of group or individual socializing?
33. If the individual was a supervisor, indicate the individual's job title, obtain a copy of the individual's job description, and determine the individual's specific duties at the time of the alleged harassment.
34. Determine whether the accused directed, or had responsibility for the work of other employees or the complainant, had authority to recommend employment decisions affecting others or was responsible for the maintenance or administration of the records of others.
35. You can expect the accused to deny the charges. Observe the reaction. Note whether there is surprise, anger, or disbelief. Describe the details of the allegation and note the areas of disagreement between the testimonies of both parties. If the accused denies the allegations, probe further to determine with the accused the background, reasons, and motivation that could possibly trigger the complaint.

Interviewing witnesses:

1. Obtain statements from any witnesses who support or deny any of the complainant's allegations. Be aware that witnesses are often reluctant to come forward out of fear of reprisal.
2. Assure all witnesses that their cooperation is important, that their testimony is confidential and that they will not be retaliated against for testifying.
3. Resolving the complaint:
4. Apologize for the incident occurring, if that is appropriate.
5. When attempting to remedy the conduct, avoid requiring the claimant to work less desirable hours or in a less desirable location. If you offer to transfer the complainant, try to get the complainant's consent and make sure the transfer position is substantially similar to the complainant's prior position. This helps ensure that the complainant is not being illegally punished for reporting discrimination or harassment.
6. Consider the severity, frequency and pervasiveness of the conduct when imposing discipline on the harasser. There are several disciplinary options available, including:
 7. oral and written warning
 8. reprimand
 9. suspension
 10. probation
 11. transfer
 12. demotion
 13. termination
14. When imposing discipline on the accused, any forms of discipline short of termination should be accompanied by a warning that similar misconduct in the future may result in immediate termination. If no discipline is imposed, document the reasons why.
15. Provide remedial counseling and training on sexual harassment, if appropriate. Also take the opportunity to re-communicate your policy.
16. Carefully and fully document the investigation, the discipline imposed, and any remedial steps taken.
17. Conduct follow-up interviews with the parties to inform them of the company's actions
